

Six Prints from Means of Reproductions Acquired for the Permanent Collection of the High Museum of Art Atlanta

Prints in the permanent collection of the High Museum of Art in Atlanta

I am very pleased to announce that Brett Abbott, curator of photography at the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, has selected works from my Means of Reproduction project as the winner of the Atlanta Photography Group's first grant toward the acquisition of the artworks for the museum's permanent collection.

Six prints from the project were exhibited at the APG Gallery from December 14, 2012 through February 9, 2013, as part of their annual Portfolio Show, and are now in the collection of the High Museum of Art Atlanta. Paul Martineau, associate curator of photography at the J. Paul Getty Museum in Los Angeles, juried the exhibition.

I am tremendously honored to be chosen as the first recipient of this award. My gratitude goes to the wonderful people from the Atlanta Photography Group for their generosity and commitment to provide artists from their own community and throughout the nation with support and important opportunities such as this one.